TITLE: Cemetery record

DATES: 1990.

ARRANGEMENT: Grouped by cemetery.

DESCRIPTION:

Inasmuch as the town of Junction had kept no records relating to community cemeteries, Ms. Dortha B. Davenport took the initiative to reconstruct and compile a cemetery record for the community. In compiling this record Ms. Davenport obtained information from obituaries, LDS Church records, her personal journal, communication with relatives, and the inscriptions on headstones in Junction's several cemeteries. For each individual this record potentially provides the following information: name of deceased, gender, date and place of birth, parents' names, spouse's names, date and place of death, and cause of death. Ms. Davenport's compilation includes information about individuals buried in the Hill Cemetery (currently in use) as well as for the City Creek, Field, and Howes Cemeteries. Her record includes brief histories of abandoned cemeteries and maps of the City Creek and Field Cemeteries.

Codified ordinances delineate the functions of town government, and define the responsibilities of both elected and appointed officials. In addition to statutory offices, Junction ordinances authorize a superintendent of streets, a chief of police, a pound keeper, a cemetery superintendent, a water superintendent, a fire chief, and a board of health. Junction ordinances define criminal activity and provide for punishments and fines. They contain statutes regulating business, water usage, and waste disposal, and they authorize taxation.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological by date.

DESCRIPTION:

The Junction town council is responsible for all aspects of town government including maintaining public services and utilities, appointing town officials and setting their salaries, establishing a budget, and regulating activity within the community. Municipal councils are required by law to keep council minutes which summarize all matters proposed, discussed or decided at monthly and special council meetings (Utah Code Unannotated, 1992, 52-4-7). Each set of Junction council minutes includes the date and time of the meeting and names those present. Minutes summarize the council's discussion and indicate the outcome of votes on council decisions. ARRANGEMENT: None

TOTAL VOLUME: 0.10 cubic feet.
