TITLE: Abstracts (mines)

DATES: 1875-

ARRANGEMENT: By order of entry.

DESCRIPTION:

The Washington County recorder kept an abstract of mining claims. For each mining claim (or mill site) he made a chronological list of official activity. These actions include, but are not limited to, notices of location, proof of labor, deeds conveying interest or part interest to another party, and leases. The recorder generally began keeping an abstract when some official action involved the claim subsequent to original recording of location notice. In this record he included the name of the claim, the names of locators, and identified a mining district. He indicated the date of original location and where and when the notice was recorded. In the list of actions involving the claim, he included the names of grantee and grantor, the kind of instrument (or action), dates for recording and possibly additional details.

TITLE: Abstracts (Saint George)

DATES: 1862-

ARRANGEMENT: Sequential by plat letter, thereunder numerical by block number.

DESCRIPTION:

County recorders are required by Utah law to keep abstract records, which show by tract, every conveyance, encumbrance or other recorded document pertaining to land within the county (Utah Code Annotated, 1953, 17-21-6). Each abstract entry indicates the kind of document, notes the dates it was created and filed, and names a grantee and grantor. It contains a legal description of the property and identifies a location in terms of plat, block and lot number. Abstract entries indicate where transactions were acknowledged, name the acknowledging officer, indicate when the entry was made in the abstract book, and tell the book and page where documents were recorded. The entries in Abstract Book A, Abstract Book A 1, and Abstracts: Saint George, chronicle documents relating to town lots in the city of Saint George. Abstract Books A and A 1 contain entries for Hurricane and Santa Clara as well.

DESCRIPTION:

County recorders are required by Utah law to keep abstract records which show by tract, every conveyance, encumbrance or other recorded document pertaining to land within the county (Utah Code, Annotated, 1953, 17-21-6). Abstract Books B-B 4 and Abstracts: Sectional Land Range 10-20 provide a chronological history of ownership and encumbrances for all land in Washington County which lies outside of community surveys. Abstract entries indicate the type of document, note the dates it was created and filed, and name a grantee and grantor. They include a legal description of the property and indicate its location within the section. Abstract entries report where a transaction was acknowledged, name the acknowledging officer, tell when the entry was made in abstract, and indicate the book and page number where deeds or other documents were recorded. These records contain the history of property ownership by providing "a true chain of title to each tract or parcel and the encumbrances thereon as shown by the records of the office" by geographical location (UCA 17-21-6(3)(2011)). They contain "every instrument recorded, the date and kind of instrument, time of recording, and the book and page and entry number" (UCA 17-21-6(l)(f) (2011)).

TITLE: Agreements and leases

DATES: 1923-1954.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological in the order recorded.

DESCRIPTION:

Agreements and leases were recorded by the county recorder when certain privileges were granted to one party while the other party retained property ownership or when two parties wanted to make an agreement between them official. Many kinds of leases and agreements are contained in these books, however, the majority of records involve mineral rights. In accordance with a 1920 Congressional act designed to promote the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, oil shale, or gas and sodium on the public domain, (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XLI, part 1, chap. 85) individuals or corporations could obtain prospecting permits on the public land which entitled them to extract coal or other mineral deposits. In addition to prospecting permits, Washington County lease and agreement books contain numerous documents granting one individual the right to enter to procure oil, gas, or minerals while another individual retains ownership and the right to use the land for agricultural purposes. Documents in these books define who is leasing from whom; describe the property being leased; define the covenant or agreement and its terms; identify encumbrances, benefits, royalties; and define both lessee and lessor privileges and responsibilities. Other issues which may be discussed include liens, who will pay taxes, and compensation in case of damages.

TITLE: Auditor's tax deeds

DATES: 1936-1939.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological by year, thereunder by entry number.

DESCRIPTION:

Auditor's tax deeds, which convey legal ownership of property from the county auditor to the county, were one step in the process of foreclosure for delinquent taxes. These deeds recite the amount of tax due for which the property was sold, the year in which it was assessed, the day and year of sale, the amount for which the real estate was sold, and give a full description of the property (Revised Statutes of Utah, 1933, chapter 80, section 10). According to Utah law, the county is authorized to execute a lien against real estate if property taxes remain unpaid. When taxes become delinquent, a certificate of sale facilitates a preliminary transfer of property from the owner to the county. The county holds the property, but continues to assess taxes for four years. During this time it can be redeemed by anyone willing to pay the delinquent taxes plus interest and penalties. If the property remains unredeemed after four years, the county can foreclose the lien by an action in district court. Foreclosed property is sold at auction in May of each year (Utah Code, 1984-1985, chapter 59, articles 7-9).

TITLE: Chattel mortgages

DATES: 1947-1987.

ARRANGEMENT: Numerical by entry file number.

DESCRIPTION:

Chattel mortgages are mortgages of personal property such as livestock, merchandise, machinery or furniture. The territorial legislature defined the terms of chattel mortgages and specified that the same should be recorded in the county where the mortgagor resided, and that the county recorder should keep a book specifically for that purpose with an index (Compiled Laws of Utah, 1888, chapter IV, part VI). DATES: 1898-1987.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

The Washington County recorder kept an index to chattel mortgages, or mortgages of personal property, such as livestock, machinery, furniture, merchandise and crops. The index references chattel mortgages, releases of chattel mortgages, and bills of sale. The index identifies the type of document, names the mortgagee and mortgagor, gives the filing date and document date, and the amount of consideration money. Early indexes also indicate a book and page number, while later ones refer to a document file number. Statutes governing chattel mortgages were enacted by the Territorial Legislature in 1884 (Laws of Utah, 1884, Chapter XXI), and were repealed in 1965 (Utah Code, Unannotated, 1989, 70A-10-102).

TITLE: Deeds

DATES: 1869-1875.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

In 1852 the Utah territorial legislature established regulations for the transfer and possession of real estate. They determined that a deed must be officially recorded for every sale or transfer of property, and that no transaction would be valid unless so recorded. Deeds were to be based on officially recognized surveys (Laws of Utah, 1852. "An Act Regulating Transfers of Possession of Land and Real Estate," p. 66-67). Early deeds included names of buyer and seller and a legal description of the property. They specified a consideration for which the transfer was being made, either an amount of money or good will, and were signed by the grantors (sellers) and witnesses. In addition to transfers from one individual to another, Deed Books D and G contain certificates from the General Land Office of the United States conveying land from the Federal Government to individuals who had purchased it according to requirements established by Congress.

Deeds are official contracts transferring property ownership. According to Utah law, no transfer or sale of property is valid unless it is recorded by the county recorder. (Laws of Utah, 1852. "An Act Regulating Transfers of Possession of Land and Real Estate," p. 66-67). Deeds include the names of buyer and seller, a legal description of the property, and specify the terms of the transfer. They are signed by the grantors (sellers) and witnesses. All documents in this series relate to property in western or north central Washington County, which includes Enterprise, Pine Valley, Ivins, Gunlock, Santa Clara, and Pinto. The records include not only deeds, but a wide variety of documents relating to real estate. These include mayor's deeds, indentures, quit claim deeds, warranty deeds, mortgages, mining claims, court decrees, auditor's tax deeds, preemption, desert land and homestead certificates, leases, agreements, right of way deeds and easements. DESCRIPTION:

In March 1867, Congress passed "Act for the Relief of the Inhabitants of Cities and Towns upon the Public Lands" (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XIV, chap. CLXXVII), which established county probate judges or mayors as intermediaries who would distribute land and adjudicate ownership for individuals living in surveyed communities on the public domain. As the Washington County probate court proceeded to follow this direction, the county recorder established a new set of deeds books for the city of Saint George. The first records in these books are conveyances from the federal government to the mayor of Saint George followed by conveyances from the mayor to individual claimants (Deed Book F). Thereafter, the deed books contain a wide variety of documents relating to real property in Saint George or the immediate vicinity. The documents in these books include warranty or quit claim deeds conveying property from one individual to another. They contain patents, desert land and homestead certificates validating individual homesteads or purchases in the public domain, and state land certificates issued to those who purchased state land. They contain tax deeds and sheriff's deeds chronicling the sale of property for unpaid taxes or debts. Whenever the 5th District Court settled an estate or otherwise adjudicated a land related issue, the court decree was also recorded in the deed books.

DESCRIPTION:

The documents in this series of books, including Deed Record Books J, L, M, P, Q, and S, record the boom and bust of a Washington County mining town. Silver Reef had a population of 1,040 in 1877 and was abandoned by 1900. Deeds in Silver Reef conveyed land, town sites, mines, mills, water rights, and especially mining claims. However, the Washington County recorder originally began using Deed Book J for recording deeds transferring property from one individual to another as opposed to deeds conveying original ownership. These deeds include town lots in several town sites, predominantly Saint George, but also Washington, Harrisburg, Leeds, Middleton and Hebron. In addition to town lots, Book J also includes many mining deeds from the Harrisburg Mining District. Beginning with Deed Record Book L, and continuing in Books M, P, Q and S, these books primarily contain documents pertaining to town lots and mining claims in Silver Reef, but also include some deeds in Leeds and Toquerville.us Other documents in this series include homestead and federal land certificates, mortgages, mortgages foreclosures, notices of location, liens, sheriff's and auditor's tax deeds, powers of attorney, estate settlements and occasional maps of mining claims.

DESCRIPTION:

In 1882 the territorial legislature shifted the boundary between Kane and Washington Counties, so that a large section of western Kane County became part of Washington County (Laws of Utah, 1882, Chapter LII, "Creating Garfield County"). The county recorder began a new set of deed books for the annexed land. These books contain a wide variety of documents relating to real property in eastern Washington County, which includes Toquerville, Hurricane, LaVerkin, Springdale, Rockville, Grafton, Virgin City, New Harmony, Bellevue, Mountindell, and Duncan. These deed books contain warranty or quit claim deeds, which conveyed property from one individual to another; probate judge deeds validating individual claims to land in Grafton, Virgin City and Toquerville; and desert land and homestead certificates documenting individual homesteads or purchases in the public domain. They contain state land certificates issued to purchasers of state owned lands. They contain tax deeds and sheriff's deeds chronicling the sale of property for unpaid taxes or debts. Whenever the 5th District Court settled an estate or otherwise adjudicated a land related issue, the court decree was also recorded in the deed books. The deed books contain other land related documents, including mining claims, agreements, oil and gas leases, assignments, easements, and right of way deeds. They contain additional miscellaneous records such as affidavits, bishop's certificates and powers of attorney.

DESCRIPTION:

In March 1867, Congress passed "An Act for the Relief of the Inhabitants of Cities and Towns upon the Public Lands" (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XIV, chap. CLXXVII), which established county probate judges as intermediaries to distribute land and adjudicate ownership for individuals living in surveyed communities on the public domain. As the Washington County probate court proceeded to follow this direction, the county recorder established a new set of deeds books for Washington City and Harrisburg. The first records in these books are conveyances from the federal government to the probate judge followed by conveyances to individual claimants in these communities (Deed Book H). Thereafter, the documents in this series include a wide variety of deeds and other land related documents. Deed Book H also contains mining deeds and notices of location for the Harrisburg mining district. All books in this series contain court decrees relating to estate settlements, preemption and homestead certificates conveying land to individuals from the United States government, and state land certificates conveying land to individuals from the State of Utah. Washington deed books also include a few miscellaneous records such as powers of attorney, affidavits of identity, and bishop's certificates . Deed Record Book R 2 and R 3 contain numerous tax deeds, in which property was sold to recoup delinquent taxes.

DESCRIPTION:

Since 1888, Utah law has required that each county recorder keep an "entry book," in which he must immediately report in order every document he records. (Laws of the Territory of Utah, 1888, chapter XLIX, section 1). Each entry in the Washington County fee and entry books has been assigned a corresponding consecutive file number. Each entry names the parties involved, indicates the kind of transaction (or kind of instrument), and provides a legal description of the property involved. Each entry gives the date the document was created and the date and time it was recorded. It reports book and page numbers where documents were recorded in deed or other official record books, and indicates the amount of the fee paid for the recording.

DESCRIPTION:

Utah law requires that each county recorder shall keep a grantee index, which references all deeds and final judgments affecting the title or possession of real property. This index must include the following information, date of filing, kind of instrument, number of instrument, consideration, book and page number where recorded, and a brief description of the premises (Utah Code, Unannotated, 1988, 17-21-6). This law, enacted by the Territorial Legislature in 1888, prompted the Washington County recorder to begin keeping this index (Laws of the Territory of Utah, 1888, chapter XLIX, section 7). The grantee indexes provide access to a wide variety of documents relating to land ownership, such as deeds, mortgages, notices, affidavits, mining claims and patents. The recorder also used this index to reference some documents not related to land ownership. These include military discharges, bonds and oaths of office.

DESCRIPTION:

Washington County Deed Record Book V, called Transcript of Lands, describes those lands in Washington County which were granted by the Federal Government for the support of education and other public institutions and for building permanent reservoirs, as provided by an Act of Congress passed 16 July 1894. This Act, which enabled the people of Utah to draft a constitution and form a state government, also granted to the State of Utah specified numbers of acres for public benefit (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XXVIII, chap. CLXXXVIII. Published by authority of Congress, Boston: Brown, Little and Company). In 1907 the Utah State Legislature mandated that the Secretary of State should transmit to each County Recorder, a transcript of all lands within his county selected by the State of Utah under the provisions of this Act (Laws of Utah, 1907, chapter 163).

DESCRIPTION:

The documents in this series relate to two general types of liens: mechanic's liens and public welfare liens. Mechanic's liens are claims against real property to secure just payment for labor, services of materials provided to a property owner. Posting notice and recording the lien with the county recorder provided notice to other potential claimants and prompted the court to hear and act upon the claims (Utah Code, Annotated, 1953, 38-1-1 to 38-1-26). Public welfare liens are claims against the real property of individuals on public welfare in order to secure reimbursement for funds advanced to them. Public welfare liens are collectable only at the property owner's death or the sale of his property.

DESCRIPTION:

The Washington County recorder kept indexes to mining claims in several formats. From 1970-1992 she kept a hand written index which lists claims alphabetically by claim name and includes names of locators, date of location, date of recording, entry number and mining district. She repeated the same information, presenting the same data alphabetically by names of locators. This information in this index is repeated in an electronic index, which provides the same information and also indicates the last date of any action on the claim. Computer printouts have been microfilmed in several formats, including alphabetically by claim name, by claimant name, and as a list of patented mines. DESCRIPTION:

Mining deeds transfer ownership or part interest in mining claims from one party to another. In the document, deeds name a grantor and grantee, specify the amount of consideration money and whether divided or undivided interest in the claim. They describe the location of the claim, and identify when, where and by whom it was originally recorded. In addition to deeds, this series contains many mineral certificates. Ownership of a mining claim involved more than discovery, possession and recording, but also required that the claimant work the ground and perform labor on the claim as required by Congress and the regulations of local mining districts (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XVII, chap. 152). When sufficient labor has been performed to entitle a claimant to a patent or final ownership, the General Land Office issued a mineral certificate, which the claimant had recorded in the deed books. In addition to mining deeds and mineral certificates, these books contains other official documents relating to mining, such as powers of attorney and oil leases. Mining Record Book X 3 contains numerous affidavits of failure to contribute or perform labor.

TITLE: Mining notices of location

DATES: 1891-1959.

DESCRIPTION:

Federal mining law enacted in 1872 provided that all valuable mineral deposits in the public domain were free and open to exploration and purchase and that the locators of the same were to have exclusive right of possession as long as they complied with the laws of the United States and of the local mining district. (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XVII, chap. 152). This act outlined the method by which mining claims could be patented, the first step being the discovery of a potentially productive site and recording of a claim or notice of location. Each notice of location recorded in these books indicates the name or names of locators, provides a legal description of the location, names the claim, and usually the mining district, and is signed by the county recorder. Recorded claims document three distinct periods of mining activity in Washington County. During the late nineteenth century, numerous claimants recorded notices of location for lode claims to mineral deposits such as silver or copper. In the first decade of the twentieth century, claimants were focusing on placer claims for potential petroleum production, and in the mid-1950s they were primarily interested in uranium.

Federal mining law enacted in 1872 provided that all valuable mineral deposits in the public domain were free and open to exploration and purchase and that the locators of the same were to have exclusive right of possession as long as they complied with the laws of the United States and of the local mining district. The law authorized the democratic organization of local mining districts and charged them to record mining claims and manage mining operations in accordance with Federal law and local needs and customs. Final ownership of a mining claim involved more than discovery, possession and recording, but also required that the claimant work the ground and perform labor on the claim as required by Congress and the regulations of local mining districts. (Statutes at Large, Treaties, one hundred dollars worth of labor be performed or improvement made during each year. The primary documents in this series are affidavits offering proof that the requisite labor had been performed. In certain years Congress legislated exceptions to this labor requirement. For example, in 1917 Congress passed a joint resolution to suspend the requirement of annual assessment work on mining claims during the years 1917 and 1918. (Statutes at Large, Treaties, and Proclamations, of the United States of America, vol. XL, chap. 75). However, the law required that in order to obtain the benefits of this resolution, every claimant must file a notice of his desire to hold his claim. Other exceptions to the labor requirement were passed in 1933, 1934, 1937, and 1943-1944. In accordance with these, the documents in this series include notices of intent to hold a claim in addition to documents showing proof of labor.

TITLE: Miscellaneous record books

DATES: 1947-1957.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

Utah law requires county recorders to record, in a book kept for that purpose, all documents, records and other writings either required or permitted by law (Utah Code, Annotated, 1943, 19-18-3). From 1947 to 1957 the Washington County recorder kept a separate book for miscellaneous records, or records that did not fit into any other organized category. The majority of these documents are: bills of sale; affidavits, including affidavits of identity; death certificates; certificates of redemption; bishop's and president's certificates; and powers of attorney. There are also a few wills, letters, releases of lis pendens, licenses to practice medicine, statements of proof of labor, city ordinances, lien waivers, declarations of homestead, and mining locations declared null and void.

TITLE: Mortgage index

DATES: 1954-1978.

ARRANGEMENT: By mortgagee or mortgagor, thereunder alphabetical.

DESCRIPTION:

The Washington County recorder kept a mortgage index beginning in 1954, which identifies mortgages and mortgage related documents. She recorded this index in two separate volumes, one referencing mortgagors and the other mortgagees. For each entry, she noted the type of document, the names of mortgagee and mortgagor, the date of the document and date of filing, and a description of the property. She included the book and page number where the document was recorded. The index refers to mortgages, corporate mortgages, trust deeds, and satisfactions or releases of mortgage. Frequently, releases of mortgage also include the book and page where the mortgage was originally recorded. Infrequently, the index also refers to chattel mortgages, contracts, liens and releases of a lien, notices of default and Federal income tax liens and releases.

TITLE: Mortgages

DATES: 1884-1956.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

County recorders are required by Utah law to record all conveyances, mortgages and other instruments, papers or notices affecting the title or possession of real property within the county (Utah Code, Unannotated, 1953,17-21-10). In 1884 the Washington County recorder began keeping a separate volume for mortgages and related documents. These volumes include mortgages, chattel mortgages, corporation mortgages, mortgage releases, chattel mortgage releases, assignment of mortgages, second and third mortgages, renewal of chattel mortgages, and a few bills of sale.

TITLE: Oaths of office and bonds

DATES: 1897-1930.

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological by date.

DESCRIPTION:

The laws of Utah as adopted in 1896 required county officials to take an oath and give a bond before entering into the discharge of their duties. All official bonds were to be recorded in the office of the county recorder and filed in the office of the county clerk (Laws of Utah, 1896, chapter 81, sec 48 & 56). In the oath of office a new official swore that he would faithfully carry out the duties of his office. In the bond the new official and his sureties put up a bond for an amount determined by the county commissioners. The bond stated that if the officer neglected to perform his duties, then this money would be paid to the county, but if he did faithfully carry out his duties, then the bond would become null and void. The Washington County recorder recorded the bonds of many county officials.

TITLE: Plat maps

DATES: 1962-

ARRANGEMENT: Chronological by filming year, thereunder by location.

DESCRIPTION:

Each Utah county recorder is responsible to prepare and keep current plat maps for all land within the county (Utah Code, Annotated, 1953, 17-21-21). These maps delineate property boundaries and show current property ownership. The Washington County recorder has drawn a separate map for each section within each township, and where detail required, separate maps for portions of sections and community blocks. More recent plat maps have been further broken down by community blocks and subdivisions. This series contains three complete sets of ownership plats. The first, called Old Ownership Plats, is not dated, but is calculated to reflect ownership as of 1962. The second is assumed to be current as of microfilming in 1974, and likewise the third in 1989. The 1974 and 1989 maps indicate the book and page number where a deed of acquisition was recorded. The 1989 maps include street names but not street addresses.

TITLE: Powers of attorney index

DATES: 1901-1988.

ARRANGEMENT: Alphabetical by initial letter of surname, thereunder chronological.

DESCRIPTION:

A power of attorney is a legal document which authorizes someone to execute any conveyance of real estate as an agent or attorney for the owner. Powers of attorney are valid only after they have been acknowledged, certified and recorded (Utah Code, Annotated 57-1-8). The Washington County recorder did not keep a separate book for powers of attorney, but mixed them with deeds and other land related records. However, in accordance with Utah law (Utah Code, Annotated 17-21-6), she kept an index to powers of attorney which provides the date of filing and the book and page were recorded. This index includes both the names of property owners and designated attorneys, and indicates when and if the power of attorney was revoked.
